Matt Wright Outback Glamping Experience.

MATT WRIGHT is best known for his astonishing work grappling with monster saltwater crocodiles on his hit TV show Outback Wrangler. The show follows the capable and ruggedly handsome 38-year-old around on his day job, working on cattle stations, relocating problem crocs and sustainably collecting crocodile eggs as part of the Top End's conservation program. Matt has just been named as one of the faces of Australian tourism, taking part in the massive Dundee Super Bowl campaign with the likes of Chris Hemsworth and Danny McBride and gracing key events for G'Day USA in Los Angeles. When he's not catching crocs or filming, Matt's other big love is tourism. He is passionate about creating unique 'once in a lifetime' experiences for Top End tourists. Taking people off the grid and opening their eyes to the adventure and beauty of the Australian outback, its landscapes and wildlife, is what really gets Matt excited. Recently selling his stake in Darwin's number one tour Outback Floatplane Adventures, Matt is excited for what the future holds for the company and NT Tourism in general. "My business partner Troy Thomas will be taking over the company. His wealth of tourism experience and knowledge will see him take the tour to new and exciting heights. It's an activity I recommend everyone to do when they come to Darwin!" "I love seeing innovation and new experiences in the Top End. It really is the final frontier with character like nothing else and endless opportunities for exploring, we just need to get more people over here to check it out!" Matt Wright runs tailored private and corporate adventure tours out of Darwin which take people to the best bits of the Territory in wild Matt Wright Style! With everything from helifishing, brumbies, crocodile encounters, waterfalls, deep sea fishing, airboating and non-stop adventure, a trip with Matt is a must do. And if you're after some R&R under the starry outback sky then a night's stay at Matt's Outback Safari Glamping Experience is worth a visit. Big beautiful Lotus Belle tents fitted with a double bed, individual fresh rainwater showers, communal swimming pool, elevated fire pit and great food and drinks, it is authentic Australia with a touch of swank at its absolute best!
